5. Additionally, I produced certain graphics for the commercial application of the invention described in the above-identified application in the DEEP POCKETS gaming machine which was subsequently shown at the September 2001 gaming convention in Las Vegas, Nevada.

6. Specifically, I:

(a) produced the artwork for the DEEP POCKETS gaming machine shown in the attached Exhibit B at least as early as May 8, 2001, which included graphics identifying determining an amount of an award based on an order of numbers associated with an order a player selects positions for those numbers. The first page illustrates a first position selected by the player which is highlighted. The second page illustrates associating a three with the first position selected by the player. The third page illustrates a second position selected by the player which is highlighted. The fourth page illustrates associating a seven with the second position selected by the player. The fifth page illustrates associating a one with the remaining third position. The award provided to the player is, therefore, seven hundred thirty-one.

Invention Disclosure

Title: Deep Pockets Bonus

Inventor: Anthony Brucher, Carl Bonnist, Bob Silva, Darren Maya

Date of First Disclosure: 2/16/01

Brief Description of Invention:

This is another bonus game that is activated by a predetermined event occurring in the primary game. When the bonus is activated, x number of kangaroos appear and the player is asked to select one. Upon selection of the kangaroo, a number y appears and this y number of joeys come out of the kangaroo.

The player is then asked to place these y joeys on one of the y locations, (See Figure) in the order that they desire. Once the joeys are placed, they reveal their numbers. The order of the numbers is the amount of bonus you receive. (See Figure) In alternate embodiment, one of the joeys could be a multiplier or another animal (and thus, it automatically reveals itself and is not part of the placement).

In another alternate embodiment, as the joeys are being placed or after they are revealed, a tazmanian devil appears and scrambles the numbers, thus changing the bonus amount. Or, after the numbers are revealed, the tazmanian devil appears and the player is given the option to the scramble the numbers.
